Amanda May India

I went to India and back. First I want to thank you again for helping me get a chance to go. I met so many people both young and old. I took over 5000 photos. The team got to feed people. I was able to tell my testimony 3 times. We gave away 100 bikes to the pastors of Harvest India. It rained on us a little but it was nice for it took away the crazy heat. Also, we got to dedicate 4 wells and a church. Here are some pics of the trip.

Lockwood/Miller Trail Report

On Saturday, August 14, six jeeps met at the Flying J at Frazier Park to run the Lockwood-Miller Jeep Trail. Present were Pete Johnson, trail leader, Danny and Linda Ward, tailgunners, Ray and Karen Kleinhuisen, Mike Wallace, and guests Roger Satorra and friend Beth, and Roy Chance. The group left the Flying J at 9 am and arrived at the trail head and aired down at about 9:30. At the creek we found a group of four jeeps ahead of us who were waiting for a Dodge SUV to back down the first hill on the trail. Apparently he had gone up the trail further and decided to give it up. Shortly, however, he backed off the trail and got high centered on the outside berm. Pete and a jeep from the other club went up and extracted the SUV by putting a winch line on both ends, then guiding him down to a wide spot where he could turn around. The driver "thanked us for coming along." The other club then proceeded up the trail, followed by the Dirt Devils. The run up Lockwood was uneventful, with Mike really enjoying the new lockers and gearing in his CJ. We took it nice and slow for the newcomers. Underbrush in the burn area continues to grow, but no new tree growth was seen. Dry and dusty, but at least it's a little greener. We lunched at Piru Creek in the shade, during which the guests expressed enthusiasm about the trail. They hadn't seen Miller yet. After lunch we headed up into the rocks on Miller Jeep Trail. The trail was dry and not a lot of erosion damage over last winter. Some obstacles were a little more eaten out, but not a lot more difficult. These were more of a challenge to the newcomers, but they reacted enthusiastically and came through with flying colors. Roger got to see what a mostly stock JK 4 door Rubi will do and Roy's '05 Ruby also had no problems. Mike's CJ also did fine until he shut it down on a steep section while waiting for those ahead to climb through an obstacle. Then the I6 carb did its thing, and the jeep wouldn't restart. Danny and Mike cajoled it back to life after some priming, however, and the CJ ran the rest of the trail with no problem (Mike didn't shut it down again). We reached the top of Mount Alamo about 4 pm, and enjoyed the cool breeze while rehashing the run before cruising back down the forest service road to Hungry Valley and I-5. There were no cowbells, no damage, no injuries (except Mike got stung by a bee on his back), and everyone had a good time. This is what jeeps were made for.

Trail master: Rick Walter Tail gunner: Castulo Olivas

Meeting location Crab Flats Campground,

Weather; low 80'S No clouds mild wind perfect

Starting location: 34 16'30.89" N 117 03'02.45" W

Ending location: 34 18'01.30" N 116 58'57.18" W

Ray & Karen Kleinhuizen, Greg Rhoads, Joshua Bleijenberg, Castulo Olivas, Ron Webber, Rick Walter

Guests - Jason Murphy, Chip German

Trail was clean, dry and clear. We started at the bottom and went up. The gatekeeper was in good shape and all passed through without exception, even though Castulo tried his best to be the next cowbell holder. Sorry Ray, a bit longer.... The trail provided a wonderful afternoon run through the area that burned in 2007 (I think). It is good to see the area coming back and looking green again. The main feature of the trail is the rock garden at 34 16'37.59" N 117 00'30.62" W was dry and easily navigated by all. We'll be going down Holcomb Valley Trail sometime next spring for a real challenge in this rock garden that raises the bar on this black diamond trail. We had the trail to ourselves the entire run. Upon coming out of the forest there at Fawnskin, we found ourselves in the middle of the Big Bear – Fun Run 2013, needless to say it took us some extra time to get down the hill.

Trail comments – use back to continue

Trail was clean and clear with the exception three or four smaller trees on the uphill side of the trail which were moved to the lower side of the trail. A log was rolled off the trail. One HUGE fallen tree located at 34 15'54.67" N 117 07'03.26" W which is near the bottom of the featured waterfall. The tree was estimated 60 plus feet in length and 3 feet in diameter. It required help from all hands and three winches to move it off the trail. Two ¾ inch test holes for future winch anchors were successfully drilled into solid rock near the top of the water fall. The AAT club coordinator (Roger) will be contacting park officials for details regarding anchor specifics and the installation of winch points.

Several other rigs were on the trail; one full sized 4wheeler requiring winching and was performing some rather questionable winching technics.

Roger drilled a hole into a rock at the top of the Dish Pan Waterfall. On the next trip out to Dish Pan Roger will install a tie off pint for worried about getting stuck or worst yet rolling over.

Guests

Linda Wucherpennig is the association secretary for CORVA. CORVA represents all off-road vehicles, not just 4-wheelers. She passed out information about what Corva is involved with in the state. CORVA is supporting the state of California which wants to keep Ocotillo Wells open. Cal-4-Wheel is also involved and has an online letter writing program that is available to everyone. This program brought down the mail server, which shows a lot of participation. Please write letters, it does work. The website is www.corva.org. For Johnson Valley, the bill has gone through the House, but not yet the Senate. The Marines are campaigning against it. CORVA has sample letters on their web site. Corva provides classes on the comments process. Need to be careful with the letters as if it's a form letter, it may be counted as only 1 regardless of how many are received. Corva has a Southern Jamboree in October.
